Acknowledgement

I extend my heartfelt thanks to all members of the promotion committee for their devotion of time to read and evaluate the study. All the staffs of the Faculty of Law, the International Office and the Libraries of the University of Amsterdam also deserve my thanks for their administrative assistance during my stay and work in Amsterdam.

I also thank the officers and staffs of i) the National Bank of Ethiopia; ii) the private and government banks in Ethiopia; iii) the private and government insurers in Ethiopia; iv) the Ministry of Trade and Industry of Ethiopia; v) the Trade Practices Commission of Ethiopia; vi) the Investment Agency of Ethiopia; vii) the Privatisation and Public Enterprises Supervisory Agency of Ethiopia; viii) the Social Security Agency of Ethiopia; ix) the Ministry of Finance and Economic Development of Ethiopia; x) the Ministry of Revenues of Ethiopia; xi) the Ministry of Information of Ethiopia; xii) the Central Statistics Agency of Ethiopia; xiii) the Addis Ababa Chamber of Commerce; and xiv) the Justice and Legal System Research Institute of Ethiopia for allowing me to access data and information for this study. Some of them also deserve special thanks for the valuable views they shared to me on issues I raised to them from time to time.

All my colleagues in Addis Ababa who extended their good wishes to me during the pursuit of the study also deserve my thanks.

I should not also pass this occasion without extending my heartfelt thanks to the University of Amsterdam and the Dutch Government for covering the costs of my study and living in the Netherlands.

My wife Bizuayehu Mamo Gebrewold and my children Betelhem Solomon Abay and Kidus Solomon Abay also deserve reward for their patience and encouragement: I love and respect them.
